Custar on Forney and the Philadelphia Convention.

John W. Forney recently published a bitter attack on General Custar, the dashing cavalry General, charging that his course was inconsistent with his past, and that his views on Reconstruction had Apologetic .- This being election been modified since his testimony week, and having a rush of job before the Congressional commitwork, we have been unable to give tee or Reconstruction. Custar has our usual amount of reading mat- replied. We have not space for all his letter, but give the following extracts:

* A few of the most extreme Radical journals have pretended to discover an inconsistency between the views embraced in my testimony before the Congressional committee on Reconstruction in March last, and in my present action as a delegate to the Philadelphia Couvention, and a supporture of the principles emucia-Smith's majority, delegate to the Philadelphia Convention, and a supporter of the principles enunciated in the resolutions and platform proclaimed and adopted by that illustrious, national and patriotic assembly, composed of representatives from every State and every Territory in the Union, and therefore the first truly National Convention which has assembled in our country during the past six years. Prominent in this misrepresentation and wilful perversion of the truth is the organ controlled and eelli-ed by yourself, and, were it not for the official position which you hold. I would not deem myself justified in refering to you.—

I will not refer to the seditious and inflammatory epithets you applied to that Convention, of which I am proud to have been a member. but will only class them with your insidious and wicked harangues pronounced in the city of Philadelphia. your insidious and wicked harangues pro-nounced in the city of Philadelphia, during the sitting of the Convention, in which you endeavored to stir the passions of what you supposed a mob to deeds of violence and blood. Neither will I occupy time in ex-posing your baseness in characterizing those gallant soldiers of the Union who took part in the Convention, as being in-fluenced by any but the highest, noblest-and most patriotic impulses which govern took part in the Convention, as being influenced by any but the highest, noblest and most patriotic impulses which govern the human will. Much less were they, as you insinuate, tinctured with disloyalty.—Such unwarranted, unjust and unprovoked assertions come from you with bad grace when directed against those, who, during the entire war, have freely and unselfishly periled their lives to restore, defend, and perpetuate the principles of a constitutional Government, which you are laboring to destroy. What have you to gain in maligning and traducing those whose patriotism has undergone the test of battle and is beyond impeachment?

As to the propriety of my course in attending the National Union Convention. I recognize neither in you, nor in those you represent, the right to questfon my motives. If I satisfy my God, my country and my conscience. I achieve my highest aim. That my course has received the approval of the first, and will ultimately, if not now, receive that of the second, is evinced by the hearty approval of the third. As was so hearty approval of the third. As was so feelingly expressed by the distinguished statesman and patriot who presided over the deliberations of the Convention, "peace hath her victories, none the less renowned than war," and along with the many victhan war, and along with the many victories achieved upon many a hardly contested field by the courage, fidelity, and perseverance of our noble and patriotic armies, and in which I am proud to have been an humble participant. I place as a crowning victory the harmonious assembles of that Convention composed as it 1371 bling of that Convention, composed as it was of representatives from every State and Territory—men who for years past have been opposed in principle and policy, but who, easting aside all prejudice and personal ferling, assembled, intent but upon one purpose, to secure peace, prosperity and the preservation of the country. To aschieve this grand purpose it seemed as if one and all were inspired by the sentiment Union, Concession and Harmony-everything for the cause, nothing for men. And as a result of their deliberations the platform and principles adopted by that Con uention may be expressed in six words-National Integrity, Constitutional Liberty, Individual Rights. Upon this platform all The vote for Congress, in the First District, gave Eggleston, (Union) 980 variation of the congress of the co perpetuate strice, disc rd and disunion will reject it.
